RE: Pay days / direct deposit checks / payroll

Mr. Handley,

The Company may elect to implement a bi-weekly payroll. The transition to a bi-weekly payroll will not occur without a minimum of sixty (60) days' notice to bargaining unit employees.

With such implementation, regular payday for bargaining unit employees will be on Friday, unless it occurs on a Company and/or banking holiday, in which case employees will be paid on the closest business day prior to Friday, which is not a Company and/or banking holiday.

In addition, all wages will be paid via direct deposit. Employees who are unable to attain a bank account allowing for direct deposit will be paid via pay card. All pay statements and W2 forms will be made available electronically.

Sincerely,
